CAISE and the National Science Foundation ISE Program

ISE Professional Development Convening

February 2nd and 3rd

Melrose Hotel

Room Potomac III

Washington, DC

Meeting Overview

The ISE Professional Development Convening is a small workshop of ISE-funded principal investigators and their project evaluators who have been brought together to share and evolve how we think about and do our work as ISE professionals. Attendees will include principal investigators, project evaluators, NSF program officers, two outside experts and other project staff from around the country who represent a range of informal science education sectors, including science centers and museums, theater, broadcast media, after school programs, and libraries. The structure and content of the convening has been designed to focus on the intersection of theory and practice, and draw heavily from ISE stakeholders' own experience and reflections on their work in this realm.

Each invitee has been selected as to represent the wide variety of professional development work from the NSF ISE portfolio, and NSF and CAISE expect to learn along with PIs and evaluators at this gathering in ways that will help shape the ISE program's strategic direction going forward. The intent of this convening is to deepen the ISE field's understanding about the unique challenges and unexplored opportunities that ISE professional development projects provide. Our goal is for actions and outputs from this workshop to flow into and inform strands of the March 2012 ISE PI Meeting and beyond.
The discussions, outcomes and products from the workshop, as well as the materials and thinking that informed it, will be shared with the ISE field writ large via CAISE communication channels following the convening.
